DEATHS

Benjamin Arnold Jr. d. 1 Nov 1858, aged 89 yrs. NOTE--(This is not correct as Benjamin Jr. was born 22 Jan 1808 in Greenville District SC d. 1 Nov 1858 m. Mary McDavid. He was not 89 years old when he died)—perhaps typo?

Died at his residence in Greenville district on Friday the 15th Jan last, Benjamin Arnold in the 78th year of his age. The subject of this notice was born in Virginia and when a small boy his father emigrated and settled near Petersburg, Georgia. Benjamin Arnold Sr. (father) removed his family (from GA) and settled on Horse Creek in Greenville County in 1783. Here his son (Benjamin Jr.) lived and raised a large family. He had the misfortune to lose his wife in 1836. Early in life he was promoted to the command of the Regiment of Militia in the district in which he lived and served in the office of Magistrate for upwards of thirty years. Greenville Mountaineer Issue: 5 March 1847

Newest National Register of Historic Places Listings

The Allen Temple A.M.E. Church in Greenville was listed in the National Register of Historic Places on April 16, 2010. Built 1929-30, it is significant as the first A.M.E. church in Greenville and architecturally significant as an excellent example of early twentieth century Classical Revival ecclesiastical design. The architect was Juan Benito Molina, born and educated in Cuba and the only black architect practicing in Greenville in the early twentieth century. Organized during Reconstruction as a mission church, Allen Temple A.M.E. was formally organized as a separate congregation in 1881. The church is a large gable-front, steel-frame brick building laid in American bond, with projecting twin towers of unequal height. The two-story Dreher Educational Building was added in 1949. The Fort Fremont Battery on St. Helena Island in Beaufort County was listed in the National Register on May 5, 2010. Fort Fremont Battery is significant as an intact example of late nineteenth and early twentieth century military architecture. It is also significant as the major armament at one of two surviving coastal fortifications in the U.S. intact from the Spanish-American War era. Fort Fremont was authorized soon after the Spanish-American War began in April 1898. It was named for Major General John C. Fremont, explorer, first presidential candidate of the Republican Party in 1856, and Civil War general. Its location was chosen to protect Beaufort from possible enemy incursions into Port Royal Sound. Although the war ended in the fall of 1898 and the Sound was never threatened, construction continued as planned. The complex was built by the Corps of Engineers with hired labor from the Beaufort area and was completed by 1900, when it was turned over to the Coast Artillery. The War Department planned to phase out the post at Fort Fremont as early as 1906, but a garrison normally numbering some one hundred officers and men was stationed there, usually conducting artillery practice and maintaining the fort and its guns, until 1911. The fort was then decommissioned and the property was sold at public auction by the War Department in June 1930. To see a photograph and read the nomination go to <http://www.nationalregister.sc.gov/beaufort/S10817707067/index.htm>.

NEW UPCOMING ONDC PUBLICATION

Early Land Grants and Landowners Along Bush River and Beaver Dam Branch
In Newberry County, S.C.
By: Jean Epting Blackmon

This book has a map of original grants assembled for the general area between Bush River and Beaver Dam Branch of Bush River (NOT Beaver Dam branch of Saluda River). The general area covered by the grants is the stretch from the 121-bypass west of Newberry to the Laurens county line between Hwy 76 and Bush River Road. There is a separate section with a limited chain of title for each grant. Once the owners or subsequent owners of the original tracts began to divide and reconfigure them, the suggestion is to go to the Family History section. That's the second section of the book. It includes a brief (sometimes longer) history of the early landowners in that area of Newberry County and some of their descendants. The book will be hard bound and contain about 612 pages (including introductory pages, maps, and full index). For a list of land grants listed by date and primary families of this book go to Publications <http://www.newberry.scgen.org/publications.html>

Prepublication price is $55.00 (including postage and handling). If publication is completed prior to the State Meeting July 9-10, they will be sold at the workshop for $55.00; however, after that the price for this 612 page hardback book will be $60.00 (including postage and handling). You may order the book by using the printable purchase order form <http://www.newberry.scgen.org/PurchaseOrder.pdf> or by calling Lib Pitts at 864-833-2239, or simply dropping a note with your check in the mail to Mrs. Elizabeth S. (Lib) Pitts, 406 East Florida Street, Clinton, SC 29325-2430.

A Manse Jolly Miscellany

Charles H. Busha, Ph.D.

Manson Sherrill "Manse" Jolly
Co. "F", 1st South Carolina Infantry
Co. "F", 1st South Carolina Cavalry

Manson Sherrill Jolly (1841-1869), the ex-Confederate soldier who has been described as an "unreconstructed rebel" and who acquired the nickname "Manse Jolly," was born on a 300-acre farm in the Lebanon community of Anderson District, S.C. He was one of the eleven offspring of Joseph Moorhead Jolly and Anna Cole (Sherrill) Jolly. On February 5, 1861, he enlisted at Pendleton, S.C., in an infantry regiment organized by William Butler. Later, during the Civil War, he served with distinction as a first sergeant in Co. F, 1st S.C. Cavalry. Five of Jolly's brothers also served in the C.S.A., and four of them were killed during the war. The other brother committed suicide shortly after the war. In the fall of 1866, Jolly went to Texas, where two years later he married Mildred Elizabeth "Millie" Smith (1847-1924), a daughter of John Gray "Lightning Jack" Smith (1825-1880), who was a native of Anderson District, S.C. Jolly and his wife had only one child, Ella Manson Jolly, who was born in Robertson County, Texas, in 1904 shortly after her father's accidental death in Texas.

DEATH OF MANSON JOLLY

The news will be received with regret by the many friends of this bold and daring Confederate soldier. We learn that a private letter has been received, stating that Manson Jolly was drowned on the 8th of July near his home in Texas. He was building a residence on the opposite side of the creek from where he lived, and had crossed over on horseback several times during the day. The stream was greatly swollen, and in attempting to cross for the third or fourth time, he was carried with his horse down the creek, and in the struggle which ensued both were drowned. Mr. Jolly had been married about one year, and leaves a young wife, the daughter of a former citizen of Anderson.

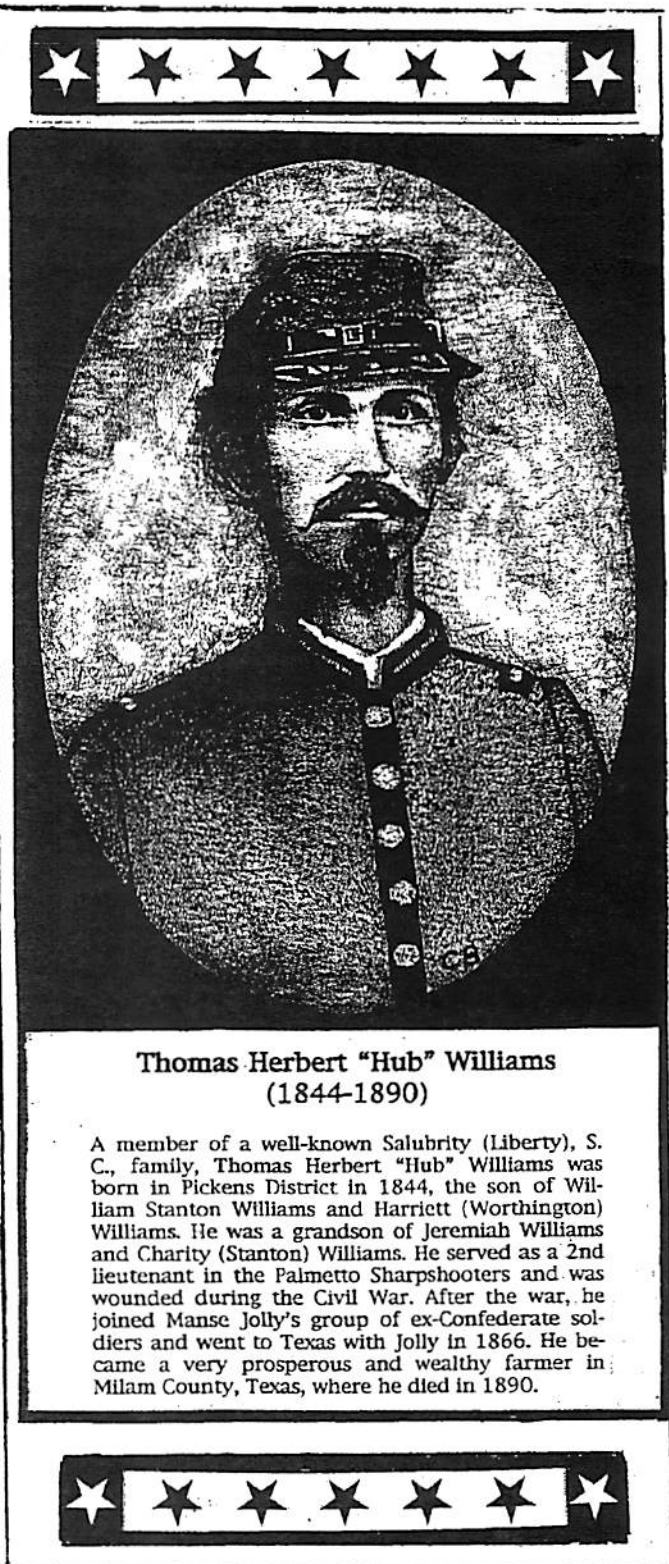

The thrilling exploits and adventures of Manson Jolly in this section of the country, immediately after the war closed, are fresh in the recollection of all. His name was a terror for a long time to the garrison of United States soldiers, especially the volunteer white and colored regiments stationed at this place. When the regular troops arrived, he removed to Texas, where he has since been leading a quiet and peaceful life.

End of the Trail in Texas

A weathered tombstone in the cemetery at Little River Baptist Church near Maysfield (Milam County), Texas, marks the end of the trail for Manse Jolly. Shortly before his untimely death by accidental drowning in 1869, the Confederate veteran applied for membership in the Masons. To investigate that application, the San Andres Lodge of Cameron, Texas, appointed former Confederate Army Lieutenant Thomas Herbert Williams (1844-1890) to process it. But Jolly lost his life before the application process was completed. The Masons then decided to accept Jolly's membership posthumously. Subsequently, the order's emblem was carved on the tombstone depicted above. The Texas cemetery in which this celebrated Civil War soldier was buried also contains the grave of Walter Largent, another Confederate veteran and a loyal Jolly sidekick. In addition, the grave of John Gray "Lightning Jack" Smith (1825-1880), a native of Anderson District, S. C., a decorated Confederate soldier and the father-in-law of both Jolly and Largent, is also situated in the cemetery. Thomas Herbert Williams, a native of the Salubrity area of Pickens District, S. C., was also buried there. He moved to Texas with Jolly in the fall of 1866.

Thomas Herbert "Hub" Williams
(1844-1890)

A member of a well-known Salubrity (Liberty), S. C., family, Thomas Herbert "Hub" Williams was born in Pickens District in 1844, the son of William Stanton Williams and Harriett (Worthington) Williams. He was a grandson of Jeremiah Williams and Charity (Stanton) Williams. He served as a 2nd lieutenant in the Palmetto Sharpshooters and was wounded during the Civil War. After the war, he joined Manse Jolly's group of ex-Confederate soldiers and went to Texas with Jolly in 1866. He became a very prosperous and wealthy farmer in Milam County, Texas, where he died in 1890.

MANSON SHERRILL JOLLY (1841-1869)

Confederate soldier Manse Jolly was born in 1841, a son of Joseph Moorhead Jolly and Anna Cole (Sherrill) Jolly of the Lebanon Community of Anderson District, S.C. He was educated in a local common school, and he enlisted in the Confederate States Army shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War. His enlistment took place at Pendleton, S.C., on February 5, 1861, when he joined an infantry regiment organized by William Butler. The military unit was mustered into Confederate Service as the 1st S.C. Regulars, and it later became the 1st S.C. Infantry Regiment. On March 10, 1861, Jolly was assigned to Co. "F" of his regiment and given the rank of corporal. In July, 1861, Jolly was promoted to the rank of sergeant. On February 5, 1862, Jolly's one-year enlistment expired and he joined Co. F, 1st S.C. Calvary Regiment, in which his brother, William Enos Jolly, also served. Manse Jolly furnished his own horse (or mount as it was called) and received a payment of $12.20 per month for the use of his horse, in addition to his regular pay. On October 1, 1862, the regiment in which Jolly served was sent to Richmond, Virginia, and Jolly was made a scout and detached to regimental headquarters. He was returned to this company in March, 1863. The regiment participated in some of the fiercest fighting of the Civil War. It was in both the First and Second Battles of Brandy Station and at the Battle of Gettysburg. During the last battle, Manse Jolly was promoted to the rank of first sergeant. Jolly survived the Civil War, but he was very disappointed by its outcome. Four of his brothers lost their lives in the war, and a fifth brother committed suicide after the war. After the conflict, Jolly formed a band of disenchanted, if not disgruntled, ex-Confederate soldiers. The small group was made up of Jolly; Thomas Herbert "Hub" Williams of Salubrity (Pickens County, S.C.); Henry J. Knauff of Pendleton, S.C.; Walter Largent, and ex-soldier from Maryland; and John Jolly, a cousin of Manse Jolly. Jolly and his followers delighted in the harassment of federal soldiers garrisoned as occupation troops in Anderson, S.C. At times, the so-called "unreconstructed rebels" captured the troops' supplies and horses, both of which were then transported across the Savannah River and into Georgia, where they were sold in the thriving black market of the post-war years. In mid-September, 1866, Jolly and his friends left South Carolina and went to Milam County, Texas. Jolly was accidentally drowned in Texas in a rain-swollen creek on July 8, 1869.

INSCRIPTION ON WALTER LARGENT'S TOMBSTONE IN THE CEMETERY AT LITTLE RIVER BAPTIST CHURCH IN TEXAS

U. S. ARMY COMMANDING GENERAL VOICED HIS OPINION OF MANSE JOLLY OF ANDERSON DISTRICT

In early October 1865, three young Yankee soldiers of the occupation force were killed in Anderson District, S. C. They had been stationed as guards at Brown's Ferry on the Savannah River and were all from the state of Maine. Congress became very upset by the murders. Thus, Congressman F. A. Pike, who was also from Maine, chaired a committee to conduct hearings on the affair. Among the persons who testified at a February 1867 hearing was Major General Daniel E. Sickles, who led the New York Excelsior Brigade at Gettysburg during the Civil War and was awarded the Medal of Honor. After the conflict (and during Reconstruction) he was appointed the commander of the 2nd military district, comprising both North and South Carolina. Concerning the individuals believed to have taken part in the killings at Brown's Ferry, General Sickles said, "There were probably other persons present [at the ferry] who were never arrested. I tried very hard, indeed, to secure one of them—a notorious fellow by the name of Jolly—who escaped—I hear that he has gone to Texas. He ran for sheriff of the county [Anderson] a short time after the murder[s]. He was undoubtedly one of the men who fired upon soldiers, and I have no doubt that he was one of the worst." (Quoted in E. Don Herd, Jr., The South Carolina Upcountry, 1540-1980, Vol. II.

Jolly's Furlough

To All Whom it May Concern

The bearer here of Manson S. Jolly, a SGT. of Captain Thomas M. Baker's Company, II First Regiment of Infantry, aged 20 years, six feet 4 inches height, ruddy complexion, blue eyes, red hair and by profession a farmer born in Anderson District in the state of S.C. enlisted at Pendleton in the state of S.C. on the fifth day of February Eighteen Hundred Sixty one to serve for the period of one year is hereby permitted to go to Anderson in the District of Anderson in the state of S C, he having received a furlough from the 4th day of Aug. to the 19th day of August at which period he will rejoin his company at Sullivan's Island or wherever it then may be, or be considered a deserter.

Given under my hand at Sullivan's Island this 4th day of August 1861

Thomas Baker

Another Jolly Accomplice: Henry J. Knauff of Pendleton

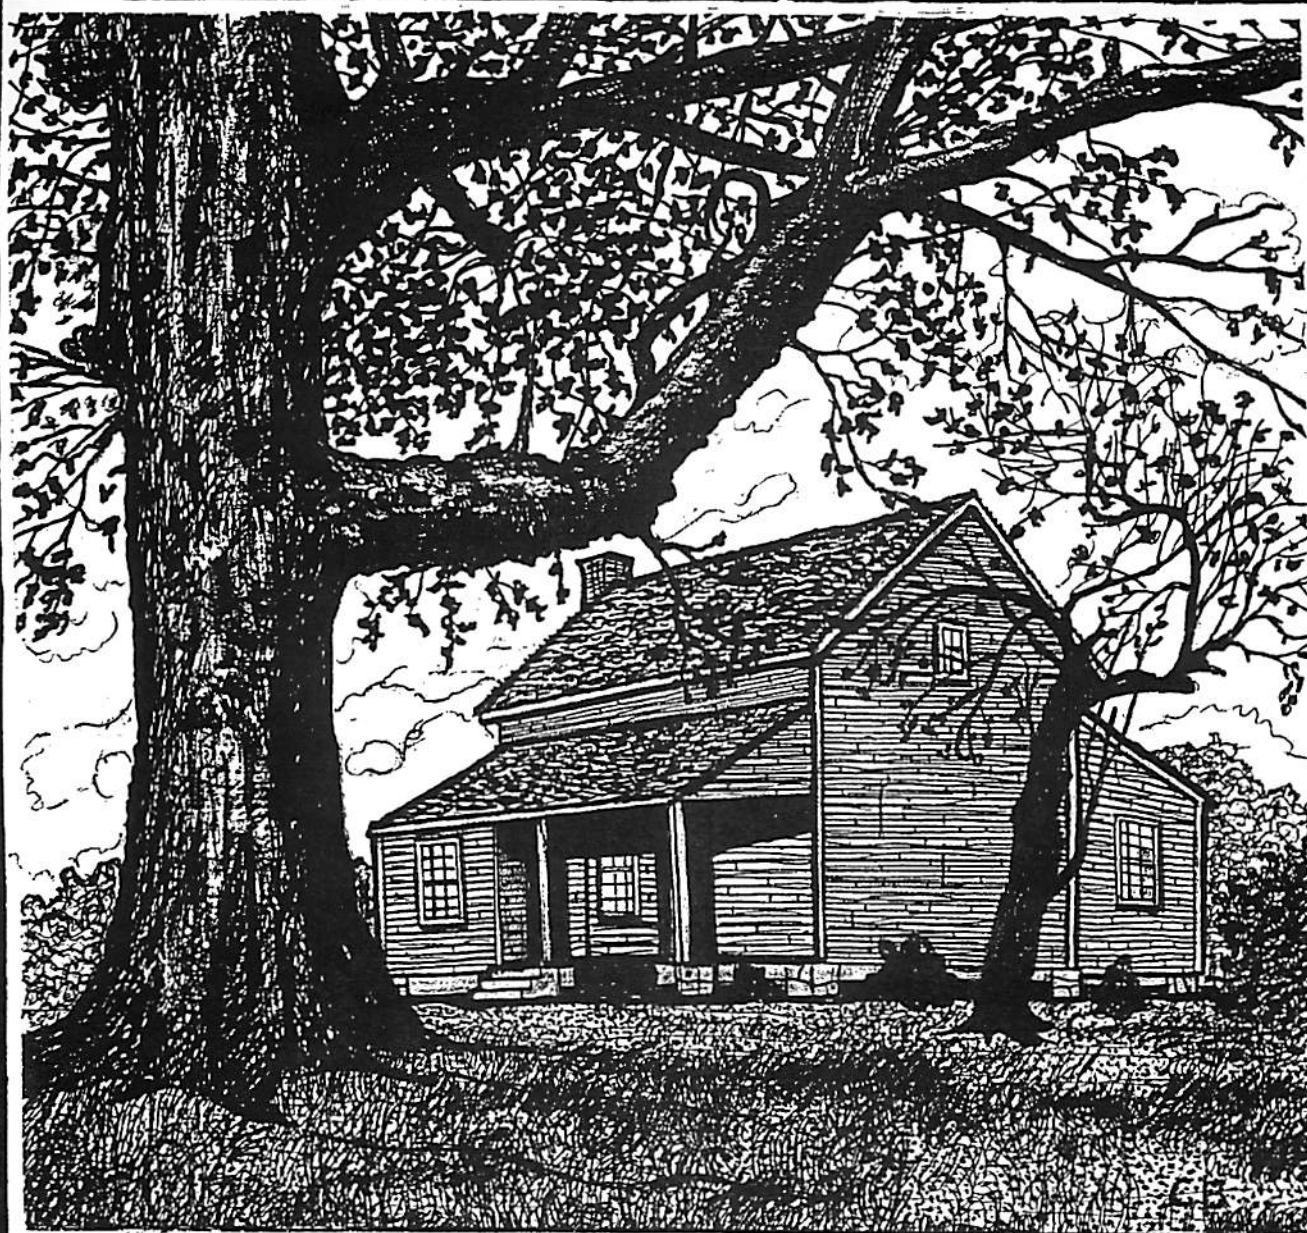

Among Manse Jolly's post-war sidekicks was Henry J. Knauff of Pendleton, South Carolina. He was also a Confederate veteran who fled to Texas in September of 1866 in order to avoid apprehension by Federal officials. At that time, lawmen were in hot pursuit of members of Jolly's gang, having suspected that they had been involved in the murders of U.S. occupation troops stationed at Brown's Ferry on The Savannah River. Henry Knauff provided the two-horse wagon used by the ex-Confederates to haul their meager possessions to the West.

Henry was a son of William J. Knauff of Pendleton. The father had moved his family to the Upstate from Charleston, South Carolina. He was a gifted cabinetmaker who had relocated to Anderson District at the suggestion of Floride Bonneau Calhoun, wife of Vice President John C. Calhoun. She very much admired Mr. Knauff's craftsmanship, and she commissioned him to build pieces of furniture to place in "Fort Hill", the Calhoun's plantation home near Pendleton.

According to a newspaper article published in The Pendleton Messenger on January 2, 1833, the following properties of William J. Knauff were the objects of a legal suit filed by Charles Miller of Pendleton: two lots situated in the village, one of which contained a dwelling and a cabinetmaker's shop. Also put up for sale in the suit were other Knauff properties, including a sideboard, cupboard, desk, bookcase, dressing table, bedsteads, unfinished chest of drawers, stove, walnut sideboard, chest of drawers, table and a quantity of lumber. The causes and consequences of this legal action are presently unknown. But the Knauffs must have remained in Pendleton, because it was there that Henry lived when he enlisted in the Confederate States Army.

During the U.S. Civil War, Henry, son of the cabinetmaker, first served in Company "B", (Palmetto Riflemen), 4th South Carolina Infantry Volunteers (Sloan's Regiment). Later, after his regiment had been disbanded in Virginia during the spring of 1862, the young man enlisted in Company "G", 6th South Carolina Calvary. Little else is presently known about this Confederate veteran, but oral tradition sources have implied that he eventually left Texas and possibly then returned to South Carolina.

Boyhood Home of Manse Jolly

The legendary Jolly dwelling on Anderson County's Manse Jolly Road was built in 1820 by yeoman farmer Joseph Moorhead Jolly, father of Manse Jolly. The original three-room section of the two-story farmhouse was made of logs. Throughout the years, wood siding and additional rooms were added. A large fireplace is a feature of the main room of the old house. Many of the family's meals were cooked in the open fireplace made of brick. The entire unpartitioned second story of the house is open, has bare log walls, and was once used as a bedroom by the eleven Jolly children. Above drawing is by Charles H. Busha.

Members Visit historic Woodburn Plantation By Kayce Shusterman

The Old Pendleton District Chapter held its annual outing on May 18 with a tour and dinner at historic Woodburn Plantation, a four-story clapboard house which is on the National List of Historic Places, and remains an excellent example of early 19th century architecture.

Members were treated to refreshments on the spacious front porch, also known as a piazza, according to Dr. Tim Drake, who served as tour guide and host for the evening. During the tour, he gave everyone a glimpse into the summer social life of South Carolina's wealthy citizens as well as fascinating facts about the famous families who once lived there.

Drake is a member of the OPD Chapter who delivered enjoyable and informative presentations on his ancestor Andrew Pickens and infamous Manse Jolly last year as guest speaker at our meetings. He is head of the Department of Pesticide Regulation at Clemson University, serves as Secretary of the Board of Directors for the Pendleton Historic Foundation and he is an avid historian and preservationist.

The tour began with a description of how the land became the summer home for Charles Cotesworth Pinckney around 1830. The Pinckney family was one of the prominent families of early South Carolina. Drake explained that wealthy Charleston families often built homes in the Upstate to avoid the heat and bug-borne illnesses of the coastal area.

Dr. John Adger, a wealthy Presbyterian minister, purchased the home in 1852, enlarging the farm and house. The expansive two-story porches, which add so much character to the house, were added to provide extra living and sleeping space.

Drake explained that the house was built on a hill and features double doors, large windows and high ceilings, all designed to take advantage of the summer breezes. He pointed out several original trees on the lawn as well as a carriage house, cook house and slave/tenant farm house that have been added to the property.

He told the group that Jane Edna Hunter was born in a tenant farm house at Woodburn. She would grow up to be a nurse, activist and a founder of the Phyllis A. Wheatley Society, a nationally recognized organization.

Drake led the group to the third floor where only the ladies slept, explaining that the men slept on the piazza on the main level. This floor had several bedrooms, a nursery, and a morning room to lounge in. The rooms had large windows and doors with a wide wrap-around porch. The rooms were furnished with beautiful antiques, incredible textiles, period clothing and many other interesting art and artifacts.

Members were allowed access to the upper floor which houses the boys and girls dormitories and was also used as storage space for trunks and clothing.

Drake brought the group back to the main level where they toured the two front rooms as he gave fascinating details on specific treasures, photographs and furnishings on display. The first floor also included the main entry hall, the master's study and a relatively new concept, a dining room.

The lower level of the house is a sub-basement with windows to let in light. There are several rooms and pantries. This was where the families of the past would generally have eaten most of their meals, according to Drake. Today, this level has electricity and includes storage and preservation areas, an office and a gift shop. This is where the members sat down to a wonderful meal catered by Central Station Cafe. Afterwards, many members toured the grounds and outbuildings.

This historic house serves as a museum with scheduled and arranged tours as well as a variety of planned events. It is owned and maintained by the Pendleton Historic Foundation, which also maintain the Ashtabula Plantation, located nearby. These homes are open from April through October for visitors, tour groups and special events. For more information you can call the Foundation at 864-646-7249 or visit their website at www.pendletonhistoricfoundation.org.
