Members and Genealogical Friends

Blanche Burgess Hannah (17 Jun 1922) (19 Jun 2013). Mrs. Hannah, wife of Willie "Bill" Hannah and daughter of Joe and Maude Wigington Burgess, was co-author of Twin Springs and a Grove of Trees: A History of Mountain Grove Baptist Church. She was a member of the Fort Prince George Daughters of the American Revolution.

Phyllis H. Harrison (1 Jan 1932) (9 Sep 2013). Phyllis H. Harrison, born at the Hendricks home in Pickens County, was the wife of Frank E. Harrison and daughter of John Evans and Vivian Hendricks Herring. Her obituary says "she was a frequent contributor to genealogical research through her careful investigation and stringent documentation of both her husband's family and her own." Her involvement in preserving Mica Cemetery saved the tombstones and original rock piles for future generations. Memorials may be made to the Ariail-Hendricks Family Cemetery Fund, 107 McDaniel Greene, Greenville, SC 29601.

Capt. J.C. Hayes (17 Aug 1926) (17 Jan 2014). J.C. Hayes was the husband of Modena Rampey and son of James and Essie Turner Hayes. Capt. Hayes donated his wife's genealogical papers to the Faith Clayton Family Research Center at Southern Wesleyan University. Later, he donated many of his papers and honors to the Clayton Room. Kayce Shusterman is organizing the Modena Rampey Hayes Collection.

William Dennis Spearman "W.D." (16 Aug 1939) (5 Jun 2013). W.D. Spearman, married to Virginia Hudson Spearman, was the son of William Berry and Margie Breazeale Spearman. W.D. was the joy of the Pickens County Confederate Committee. When the group met each month at a local church or family cemetery, W.D. would relate a story about several people buried at the cemetery. The Committee misses W.D. and his unique way of telling about Pickens County citizens and soldiers.

Jay Carlton Young (30 Apr 1929) (22 Nov 2013). Jay Young, an early member of the Old Pendleton Genealogical Society, donated books from his collection to the Faith Clayton Family Research Center when it opened in 1984. Over the years he continued to search for original documents to donate to the Clayton Room and they were placed in the Jay Young Collection.

Eastatoe Valley to be topic of next meeting

G. Anne Sheriff, founder and Curator at Faith Clayton Family Research Center at Southern Wesleyan University, will be our guest speaker Tuesday, February 18 from 7 to 9 p.m. Her topic will be "Cherokee Villages, Churches, Cemeteries and Settlers in Eastatoe Valley."

Sheriff holds a Bachelors Degree from Southern Wesleyan University and a Masters of Education from the University of Georgia. She taught in the Pickens County School District for 34 years and retired in 1998.

In addition to operating the Clayton Center, Anne is the Curator of Central History Museum & Gardens in Central, and she has published several books on research in Pickens County. She is also the Archivist and a major contributor to this newsletter.

Her present major project involves working with a Committee to identify graves/tombstones of all Pickens County Confederate or Union Soldiers and publish the results by May 2015.

Ben Robertson of Pickens County

By Charles H. Busha

PART THREE

THIS PHOTOGRAPH OF BEN ROBERTSON WAS PUBLISHED IN THE AUGUST 23, 1942 ISSUE OF THE NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW. IT WAS USED TO ILLUSTRATE KATHERINE WOOD'S VERY FAVORABLE REVIEW OF RED HILLS AND COTTON: AN UPCOUNTRY MEMORY, THE SOUTH CAROLINA AUTHOR'S LAST AND BEST-KNOWN BOOK. THE REVIEWER'S CRITIQUE WAS TITLED "IN SOUTH CAROLINA'S UPCOUNTRY BEN ROBERTSON'S MEMOIR VIVIFIES AN ENERGETIC, RUGGED AND SELF-CONFIDENT SOUTH".

Transcription of Edwin Camp's Feb. 25, 1943 "Views of the News" Broadcast About Ben Robertson

IT SEEMS certain now that Ben Robertson was one of those who died when the Yankee Clipper crashed Monday into Tagus River at Lisbon. Used as we newspapermen become to receiving bad news about those whom we have met through the busy years, some of whom we have perhaps come to know intimately, still experience does not cushion against the shock of personal tragedy that comes with such news.

Ben Robertson I did not know as well as I would have chosen. I had long been aware of his reputation, of course. For a dozen years he had been, by common assent, one of the ablest reporters in the world. He had made the globe his beat. Australia and the Philippines were as familiar to him as was Europe. And in Europe he had peered beneath the encircling veil with those steady and searching, yet smiling eyes, until he knew the countries and the peoples almost as well as he knew the Bermuda-carpeted campus of Clemson College on which he had been reared, and the families of the faculty members among whom he had grown up.

He knew England and France and Germany as well as he knew the hills and vales of Oconee and Pickens Counties, South Carolina, and the ways and fashions, the habits of life and the modes of thought, the flowers and the fragrances, the comedies and the romances and tragedies of the folks of the valley of the Keowee River and Twelve-Mile Creek -- the valley and its people whom he had so lovingly and so truthfully described and preserved for America in what is to me the tenderest, and most moving book ever written about a Southern civilization that has passed forever.

I had read this book -- "Red Hills and Cotton," it is called, and I counsel you, if you love our South and our people, to buy it and treasure it -- I had finished "Red Hills and Cotton" only a few weeks ago and had been going about evangelizing everybody whom I met as to the imperative duty of doing as I had done, when Wright Bryan called me and said, "I want to bring Ben Robertson down to meet you."

They had been raised together on the Clemson campus, their fathers being members of the college faculty, and had been life-long friends. Playmates in childhood, schoolmates, then college mates in the formative years, each had pursued with singleness of purpose the determination and ambition to become a newspaper man.

Wright Bryan came to The Journal shortly after their graduation and rose with rapid steps to become managing editor. Robertson took the world as the shop of his apprenticeship and won his journeyman rank in Adelaide and Honolulu and perhaps other far-flung places before buckling down to New York where his success was immediate. But upon it he did not rest.

For some reason I had expected to see a worldly, sophisticated globe-trotter, a dashing beau-sabreur of a war correspondent in the visitor whom Wright Bryan was bringing for a word. Instead there was a slender; grave yet smiling young man, whose voice was so low and so gentle and whose demeanor was so self-effacing, one got the idea that he was the shiest and most timid of mortals. Yet if you looked closely, you could see eyes that photographed all within their range; you could see a mental alertness that missed not an element in the scene, not a syllable of what was said, not an implication from a word or deed.

His modulated voice, his slow speech, his deferential yet alert attitude and his utter lack of pose were parts of what we call manners. And in this young South Carolinian they were manners that made it possible for him to talk on terms of equality with the rudest long-shoreman of the harbor of Sydney or the haughtiest functionary of No. 10 Downing Street.

I didn't wonder that he was a great reporter. He could go anywhere and see anybody, and find the truth wherever he sought it, because he was keen and energetic, mentally and physically, and in his person he was still the well-bred South Carolinian of the Keowee Valley.

When I chatted with him, he had just landed from a transatlantic flight. Only a few days before he had been in New Delhi, India. From there he had flown to Cairo. From Cairo he had been passenger in a bomber, sitting on a crate of freight all the way to the port from which he took off for home.

County Historical Society Recipient Of Robertson Papers

The Pickens County Historical Society recently was the recipient of more than 1500 letters and other correspondence of the late Ben Robertson. Robertson was a noted journalist and author of the 1930's and a native of Pickens County.

The gift of the Robertson papers "came like a shot in the dark" to the historical society, Dr. Charles Busha told a crowded news conference Friday. Dr. Busha is the president of the Pickens County Historical Society.

The large donation to the society was made as a gift by Mrs. Julian M. Longley of Dalton, Ga., Ben Robertson's sister.

Ben Robertson was born in Calhoun, which at the time was a section of Clemson. He was a graduate of Clemson and the University of Missouri School of Journalism. While at Clemson, he wrote stories for The Tiger and edited the "Taps" yearbook his senior year.

Robertson was perhaps best known nationally for his work as a war correspondent. His ability and personality won for him many friendships, both in the publishing world and those about whom he wrote.

As a war correspondent for the New York Herald-Tribune, The Associated Press, PM Daily and other newspapers and magazines, he fought fires in German bombing attacks on England. He served as a seaman on the "City of Rayville," the first ship torpedoed in World War II; he covered the warfront in India and the battle of Stalingrad.

A New Year's greeting from George Washington Carver and a letter in which Gone With The Wind author Margaret Mitchell dodges an interview are part of the collection of Robertson papers.

Also in the collection are correspondence with Eleanor Roosevelt and Mrs. Winston Churchill, shop talk with fellow correspondent Ernie Pyle. And a receipt for IPTAY dues are part of the collection.

Robertson is best known locally for his book Red Hills and Cotton. The book tells of his early life in Pickens County, and is described by some as "the most beautiful book ever written about the South."

On February 22, 1943, Robertson was killed in the crash of the Yankee Clipper airplane en route to Lisbon, Portugal. His eventual destination was London, England where he was to assume the news bureau of the New York Herald Tribune.

It was some time after the airplane crash that Robertson's body washed ashore. He was identified by a silver bracelet he wore as a New York Herald Tribune correspondent.

After funeral services were held in Tillman Hall on the Clemson Campus, Robertson was buried in the West Veiv Cemetery in Liberty.

"Copies of the collection of Robertson's papers will be available to the public through the historical society," Dr. Busha told the news gathering. "The original documents, however, will be preserved in a safe place so as not to be destroyed."

Historical Society
Honors
Robertson

When the Yankee Clipper crashed Monday, he was on his way back to action, this time as a correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune.

American journalism has lost one of its shining lights. More than that, I think, the South has lost a son who would have become one of its greatest men of letters -- a man who loved the South as one loves his nurturing mother. He had a great, and rare, ability to explain us to those who do not understand and he could explain without depreciation or apology. He was proud of his people.

Ben Robertson was a casualty of the war, as truly as if he had been hit by a shell.

November 22, 1982

Dear Mary B.:

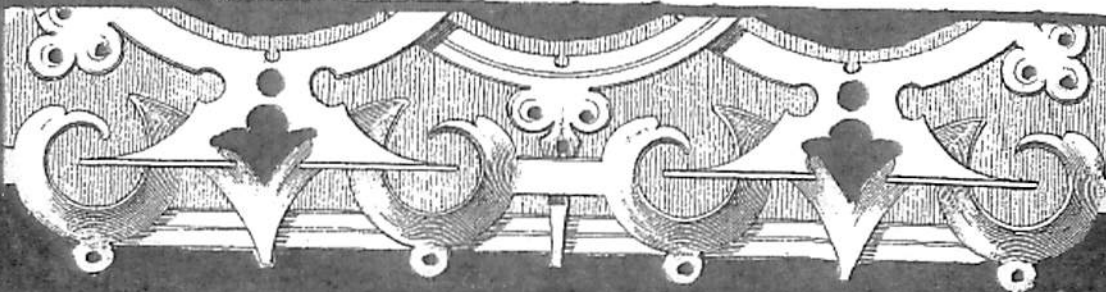

The press conference at the Pickens County Historical Museum went off smoothly and gracefully. You would have been pleased with the way Dr. Busha made the announcement about Ben's papers and his expressions of appreciation to you. I liked very much the calm but confident manner in which he presided. I had never met him before but, as you can judge, was most favorably impressed.

I'm sure he has sent you the pamphlet about Ben and his career which he prepared and distributed to all present. There were about 25 people present, including your cousin Billy Bowen.

I confess to some disappointment that you did not give the papers to the Clemson University library, but I am certainly happy to see them in Pickens County and I sincerely congratulated Dr. Busha and his associates on that.

Your last postal card came the day before the Pickens ceremonies. I telephoned the Baptist Church office immediately to give them your message about Boonie.

Ellen sends love. Devotedly yours,

Letter From Ben's Sister

Dear Dr. Busha,

Be sure to read the marked pages in the book "Lady Astor" I sent the Museum recently. Ben + King George VII became good friends.

More should be said of his musical talent. All of his Clemson classmates remember him as pianist of the band, glee club + orchestra. He could play by ear + play lower or higher for glee clubs.

I'm as usual
Cordially,
Mary B.

You Can Get Involved!

The 150 Confederate Committee continue to identify Civil War soldiers of Pickens County so that Confederate Crosses of Honor can be placed at their graves. This five-year project coincides with the Centennial Anniversary of the War Between the States.

Tombstones are photographed, information recorded and the GPS coordinates are noted. Each potential soldier and possible wife of a soldier is researched and data is collected into each person's file at the Clayton Family Research Center.

The soldiers, and their sponsors, are recognized at Confederate Memorial Day services, through this newsletter and eventually in a published format.

You can contribute to this project by sponsoring a Cross of Honor for your ancestor, or by making a general donation. The cost is $40 per Cross. You can send a check to the Pickens County Historical Society, P.O. Box 775, Pickens SC 29671.

Help update the Pickens County Cemetery Map

Through the efforts of 2014 Upcountry Reunion Committee, Pickens County Historical Society, Faith Clayton Family Research Center, Pickens County Tourism Marketing Department and the Pickens County GIS Department a Pickens County Cemetery Map is planned for the Upcountry Reunion in April 2014.

Help us update and locate 911 addresses from the list of cemeteries published on Pickens County GenWeb managed by Paul Kankula. These cemeteries were visited by Paul Kankula and Gary Flynn from 2002 to present. Gary Flynn visited a new cemetery (Doyle Cemetery) this past week.

Arial author uses yDNA to continue her Smith searches

Linda Smith Cheek was the guest speaker in January. She spoke about her new book, "Arial." Linda is the author of two books on Smiths books and Volumes 1, II, III and IV Genealogies of Old Pendleton District SC, and Volume A and Volume C deed books of Pickens County. She is a 22-year member of the Old Pendleton District Genealogical Society and a former Editor of this newsletter.

"I was born and raised at Arial and still live about one quarter mile from my old home place. I have always had a point interest in the community of Arial. Out of the blue one day decided to see what I could gather on this community," she said in a recent interview. "The people were wonderful to help name the people that lived on the streets and gave me pictures and all sorts of tales."

She worked on the 309 page-book for about three years. "Arial" has just completed the fourth printing and continues to sell well. The author will have copies available at the Reunion of Upcountry Families on April 26.

She also spoke on yDNA, which she calls "the best thing to ever hit genealogy for the Smith Families or any family that has many twists and doubts of who belongs to whom."

"It has given me a new lease on my Smith line with all the yDNA matches and now I am in progress of searching out a brand new Smith line," she said.

"I will also tell you that I have found a descendant of John Buckner Smith and one of Zacheriah Smith and they have been yDNA tested. At this time, neither of them have a match. They do not match one another and not brothers; they do not match Christopher Smith and not his sons."

"After a lot of research, I am pretty sure that I have the correct lines for both Buckner Smith, married to Dianah Toney from Virginia to Spartanburg, SC to Old Pendleton District SC and Zacheriah Smith, married to Elizabeth Adams from Rutherford County, NC to Greenville, SC."

Archivist, Anne Sheriff gave an update on the plans for the Reunion of Upcountry Families to be held April 24-26, 2014. She reminded everyone that volunteers were needed for the gathering of families event on Saturday, April 26, 2014 at Southern Wesleyan University Dining Commons.

Anne also gave an update of the ongoing 150th Anniversary Confederate Soldiers Cemetery project. She asked everyone to pickup hand-outs on the table at the entrance to see the names of soldiers who will have crosses placed on their graves this spring. Sponsors are needed for crosses.

Judy introduced our speaker for the evening, Linda Smith Cheek. Linda is a long time member of our chapter and served in many capacities including editor of the newsletter for many years. She gave a nteresting program about her latest book, ARIAL, which is about Arial Mill Village, its' people and community.

Refreshments were provided by Brenda Meyer with 28 in attendance.
