About Our Chapter

The Old Pendleton District Chapter of the South Carolina Genealogical Society is a nonprofit, 12-36-2120(40), educational organization designed to unite those interested in the Pickens and Oconee Counties, South Carolina history and family genealogy; to encourage the preservation of documents and records; to promote educational programs; and to publish local records, history and family genealogy. The Chapter's primary goal is to assist others in their search for their ancestors and origins of birthplace.

The Chapter meets every month, except July, August and December. Meetings are held on the third Tuesday of the month from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Central-Clemson Library.

The Chapter's genealogical and historical archives are housed at the Clayton Family History Center, located in the lower level of the Rickman Memorial Library on Southern Wesleyan University campus in Central, SC. This collection contains about 3,500 books and files on family histories, state and county sources, military histories, cemetery records, immigration and passenger lists. For more information send email to claytonroom@swu.edu.

The public is welcome to visit the Clayton Center anytime the Library is open. Normal operating hours are 7:45 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Thursday, 7:45 to 5 p.m. on Friday, 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday and 6 to 10 p.m. Sunday. Hours vary during summer, for holidays and during breaks in the school year. For more information call 864-644-5074, send email to library@swu.edu, or check their website at <http://www.swu.edu/academics/library/>

Charles Thomas Martin

(Note: I presently do not have more copies of the book "Charles Thomas Martin," copies were sent to the Easley Library's research room and to Anne Sheriff at the Clayton Research Center at Southern Wesleyan University.)

Several years ago, as a great-grandson of Charles Thomas Martin, I published a limited edition book on Mr Martin whom many will recall as a very early editor of The Easley Progress from the years: Jan 1905 - Dec 1919. I have been lucky enough to locate several photos from various family records of the period. I thought I'd share two here which local denizens of Easley may appreciate! This street corner pictured is the present-day corner of Pendleton St and E 1st St. It's clear from the photo that even though this is only one block away from the railroad and Main Street, Easley was still very much a sleepy village then. How times have changed!

How many people know that present-day Pendleton Street was once called Table Rock Street? It's true, and here is a photo to prove it! Notice that the street levels have changed over the years, the streets are now paved (!!), and also that the second house in the photo was the Dr. James Rosamond Martin home which still stands proudly and is still in the Martin family. This photo was taken about in 1914 or 1915, and both houses were built ca. 1910 or 1911.

The nearer home in the photo was the home of Charles Thomas Martin, business manager and editor of the Easley Progress at the time. It was demolished in the 1960s, or thereabouts. A close examination of the right-hand side of the photo appears to show a trotting horse but is a little blurry from the motion; also, in the lower RH side are "dualie" tracks from a rubber-tired vehicle showing in the muddy road. They had vehicles like that 'way back then? And see the house beyond the JR Martin house? – this contributor can vaguely remember that house still standing about in the late 1950s or early '60s.

Drowning at Harper's Ferry

Ten Persons Drown April 4, 1920 near Lowndesville, SC

Lester Waters was a young man born and reared in the vicinity of Lowndesville, S.C. Miss Lollie Scoggin was a young teacher of the same section, very beautiful and accomplished. They became friends and in course of time, friendship ripened into love. But the War sounded, the draft law was enacted, and Lester was among those that had to leave father, mother and sweetheart and answer the call. After many weary months abroad, he returned to greet with a happy smile those whom he loved best, and in a short while he and Miss Leslie were married.

He went to work as ferry-man for Mr. Harper, and his young bride continued her duties as teacher of the Diamond Springs Schools near the ferry. This was about February 1st, 1920, they went to housekeeping near the brink of the river so that Lester could be near his work of carrying people across the river.

On Easter Sunday, April 4th 1920, a party of their friends came to visit them; nine young people in all, five young ladies and four young men. All happy and gay, heedless of lurking danger, they went down to the river and started across on the flat.

It was said by a man that lived near the ferry at the time of the accident that Lester did not want to take the risk of going across, when the water was so high, but that some of the party insisted on going. It was said by some one that Mr. W.H. Bradshaw left the ferry a short while before the accident and told them: "Whatever you do, don't attempt to cross the river this evening." But anyway they went, and just as the flat reached the middle of the river, the post on the S.C. side gave way, the flat swung downstream for a short distance and then (being held by the cable) sank to the bottom. The young ladies screamed with terror as they were being swallowed up by the cold muddy water, but alas, their doom was sealed; no human agency could act in time to save them. It is said that Lester had started to swim out when Mrs. Waters rose for the last time and screamed. He exclaimed, "Oh my God, what will I do." And when last seen he was diving in a frantic effort to save her.

Nightfall found the river bank lined with heartbroken parents and friends of the lost ones. One family was minus a son and two daughters. Out of another, two young daughters were gone, never to return, and still another family suffered the loss of a fourteen year old daughter, and a sixteen year old son. Another family lost a son, and alas for Lester Waters and his young wife their joy was turned into sorrow in the twinkling of an eye, and nothing was left at his house but possibly a dear pet that mutely longed for its master's return.

Thus passed three days and nights, the river was lined with searching parties, but no sight of the dead, nothing but the rippling waters of the Savannah, the songs of whippoorwills, the croaking of frogs to break the awful silence. On Wednesday evening, a man was searching along the brink of the river on Bear Island, near the point where the Seaboard railroad crosses, just about ten miles from the scene of drowning and found the body of Miss Lucy Bradshaw. She had floated near the shore and became entangled with the bushes. Her body was taken out and brought to Calhoun Falls and prepared for burial and sent home. It was said by people that saw her that she looked almost natural.

Nearly a week passed before another body was found. Searchers at Cherokee Falls found the body of Miss Inez Manning, her head and shoulders being buried in mud and one shoe protruding above the water, showing where she was. It was said that she could still be identified although badly swollen.

About five days after the Harper's Ferry tragedy a man named Conwell was drowned at Gregg Shoals, some distance above, and people were searching for his body also. It happened that a few days after the body of Miss Inez Manning was found that two parties of searchers, one on each side of the river found the bodies of Mr. Conwell and Albert Sutherland about the same time. . . . A short time afterward the body of Miss Annie Manning was found at McCall Island. About seventeen days had passed since the tragedy, another heavy rain fell, the river reached the flood stage again, and other bodies began to rise. The bodies of Miss Alice Meschine, Mrs. Lester Waters and Robert Manning were all picked up at Cade's Ferry, about fifteen miles from the scene of the tragedy, all in one day, and the body of Lester Waters was seen floating down Cherokee Falls the same day.

Photograph taken by Brian Scott on 27 Sep 2011

Ten days passed and it seemed as if no other bodies would be recovered but Saturday evening, May 1st, two men were fishing at Millwood, twelve miles below Harper's Ferry. The river at this point was very wide and dotted with small islands.

It was nearly sundown and they saw a vulture hovering overhead; nearer and lower it came, and then alighted on a small green island in the middle of the stream. "I'll just bet you that is one of those drowned people", one said to the other. They got a bateau and went over and found the mortal remains of Lester Water.

Questions from the Mary Oates Gregorie Historical Room at the Hampton Memorial Library

Should anyone be able to answer these questions please email history@pickens.lib.sc.us or call 864-850-7077 ext. 102.

1. My ancestor Luther Gravely was murdered in 1923. An article in the Pickens Sentinel, page one December 27, 1923, states that his body was found "lying in the road near the home of James Smith, or better known as the old Morgan Place..." Any help will be greatly appreciated.
2. I am trying to determine the parents of Ansel McGill; he is my great-great grandfather. Family lore is that Ansel's family had something to do with a hotel which I think was at Table Rock. Ansel is reported to be son of John H. McGill, but I am likely thinking Ezekiel. The family came to Georgia from Walhalla and supposedly helped start Walhalla.
3. I am looking for information on Ezekiel Henderson. In particular, I am trying to verify that his father is Sterling Henderson. Also, I really would like to figure out the maiden name of Deborah Henderson. Only surnames I have been able to find through research are Brown/ Howard. Deborah died in 1914 in Union, SC.
4. Trying to find the location of Alex Dixon's grave in Westview Cemetery in Easley. I have contacted the office associated with the cemetery, but they do not have records stating his exact location. His spouse was Ellen Owens.
5. Does anyone have or know someone with copies of the D.W. Daniel High School yearbooks from 1960-1962?
